

One way to learn collective nouns

8 August 2023

Last Monday, 7th August, Epsom Library invited Frances Cohen to come and read some of the poems from her recently published book: “A Prickle of Porcupines - Really!!”

The added attraction was that the poems had been illustrated by five of her 7 grandchildren, three of whom go to local schools in Epsom. Wallace Field Juniors, and Rosebery.

Frances is a 74 year old widow, and during the many COVID lockdowns she decided to use her talent for writing poems and using the different, and sometimes very amusing “collective nouns” she had discovered for animals and birds, which she had taught to her grandchildren over the years.

The poems are educational, including some interesting facts about each animal or bird, and really can be enjoyed by children of all ages, and adults alike.

Jellyfish have been around for millions of years,
They are 95% water, and have no brains, bones, or ears,
Even though they have long tentacles, they are not very smart,
They also have no eyes, and not even a heart.
150 million people get stung by them every year,
So they are not very popular when, near your beach, they appear.
So if you see them coming, you better draw back,
And if there are lots of them together, it is called a SMACK

The book is available on Amazon, and some Waterstones Shops

An Epsom Christmas poem

8 August 2023

Christmas comes early in the month of December
 But preparations start as early as September Toys appear in the shop and the store
 And children's expectations start to soar

Adverts appear in the News and TV
 Of miraculous games for all to see Visions of food and decorations so high Make us all wish that the time was nigh

But leaves have not fallen from the trees
 And flowers are still buzzing with the bees Why are we tempted in this way?
 When the Christ child's birthday is still far away

Have they forgotten that the presents we bring Are only reminders of the presents for Him
 Of frankincense and myrrh and gold Foretelling the scriptures story of old

And when finally the great day is here
 Let us remember, amidst our good cheer
 As we celebrate around the table,
 The baby Christ child, born in a stable

Epsom Common Bird Walk Poem

8 August 2023

It's an early start, binoculars in hand, we follow the winding path through the trees;
 all shades of green surround us as we stand dawn chorus resounds, distant bird calls tease.

On the pond, moorhen chicks scoot by like wind-up bath toys, black pompoms of fluff, Mandarin watches with her exotic eye her dainty brood will follow soon enough.
Whitethroat, blackcap, greenfinch all sing, a galaxy of colours – different notes hard to hear;
cuckoo calls abound, their voices herald spring we look skyward and see one fly near.
All this the buzzard sees, soaring overhead, every inch of the common easily heard and read.

K. Wiseman - local resident “who loves the Common”.

White Roses

White Roses

(for my mother)

She never spoke about her early life in Lwów,
She told me about shocks that numbed the pain, how she left at midnight, a last minute tip-off,
escaping under sheets in pelting ice-cold rain.
She told me about ECT that numbed the pain,
she left without giving a kiss to her mother,
escaping under sheets in pelting ice-cold rain
fearful about the fate of her missing brother:
She left without giving a kiss to her mother,
rushed outside by her father, no time to pack,
fearful about the fate of her missing brother,
a young trainee doctor who never came back.
Rushed outside by her father, no time to pack,
She fled a flowerless city where thousands died,
a young trainee doctor who never came back,
she said a rosary at night, lit a candle and cried.
She fled a flowerless city where thousands died,
she’d high cheek bones, blue eyes, blonde hair,
she said a rosary at night, lit a candle and cried
no mementos of her family to help the despair.
She’d high cheekbones, blue eyes, blonde hair,
she said a rosary at night, lit a candle and cried,
no mementos of her family to help the despair,
she never spoke about her early life in Lwów.

Білі троянди

(для моєї матері)

Вона ніколи не розповідала про своє раннє життя у Львові, Вона розповіла мені про шок, який заглушив біль, як вона пішла опівночі, повідомив в останню хвилину, тікала під простирадлами під льодяним дощем.
Вона розповіла мені про електрошокову терапію, яка заглушила біль, вона пішла, не поцілував свій матері, тікаючи під простирадлами під льодяним дощем охоплена страхом, дізнавшись про долю свого зниклого брата: Вона пішла, не поцілував матері, Вибігши на вулицю перед батьком, не встигши зібрати речі, була охоплена страхом, дізнавшись про долю свого зниклого брата, молодий лікар-стажист, який так і не повернувся.
Вибігши на вулицю перед батьком, не маючи часу зібрати речі, Вона втекла з неквітучого міста, де загинули тисячі, молодий лікар-стажист, який ніколи не повернувся, промовила вночі молитву, запалила свічку і заплакала.

Вона втекла з неквітучого міста, де загинули тисячі,
у неї були високі вилиці, блакитні очі, світле волосся,
промовила вночі молитву, запалила свічку і заплакала немає таких спогадів про її родину, щоб полегшити відчай.
У неї були високі вилиці, блакитні очі, світле волосся, промовила молитву вночі, запалила свічку і заплакала:
немає таких спогадів про її родину, щоб полегшити її відчай, вона ніколи не розповідала про своє раннє життя у Львові.
